Introduction

About Bijnor District

Bijnor, a unique place among the districts of the Western Uttar Pradesh is lying at the foot of the Himalayas. The district of Bijnor was closely associated to the great epic of Mahabharata, and it is also believed that Vidur and Kuti was lived here during the Vedic period. At the time of Akbar's reign, Bijnor was a significant part of his Mughal Empire. In the early 18th century, the Rohilla Pashtuns set up their independence in this area and called them by the name, Rohilkhand. Around the year 1748, the Rohilla chief named Ali Mohammed Khan annexed the place of Bijnor, then the rest of which very soon went into the hands of Rohillas. After sometime Marathas captured Bijnor who were also instigated by enemies of Rohillas, leading to several battles. In 1772 the Nawab of Oudh made a treaty with the Rohillas but the Rohilla chieftains cheated the Nawab. In 1774 the Nawab concluded a treaty of alliance with the East India Company government of Calcutta. In accordance with the terms mentioned in the treaty the East India Company had supplied a brigade to assist him in enforcing his claims against the Rohillas. That led to the Rohilla War, the Rohillas were driven beyond the Ganges, and Bijnor was incorporated in the territories of the Nawab of Oudh, who in 1774 ceded it to the British East India Company. The British authority was there in the place until India got its independence and Bijnor as a separate district came into existence in November 1988.

Sahu Ramesh Chandra Jain, a famous media person, philanthropist, promoter of Indian literature and leader of the worldwide Jain community was born on 15th August, 1925 at Najibabad of the Bijnor District. During his life time he was honoured by two great awards-Honorary D. Lit by the Bundelkhand University and Jhansi Honour of Vidya Vachaspati by Gurukul Kangri University.

Geographically, the district lies between 29°37' N latitude, 78°14'E longitude and 223 m altitude. In the year 2021, there was a total 8.75% forest area of total geographical area. The district encompasses a geographical area of 4,561 sq. km. and in terms geographical area it occupies the ranks of 12th in the state and 246th in India. It is surrounded by Pauri Garhwal and Hardwar in the North, Moradabad in the South, Nainital and Udham Singh Nagar in East and Saharanpur, Muzaffar Nagar and Meerut in the West. The prominent rivers that passes through the district are Ganga and Ramganga. The climate of the district remains pleasant during the monsoon season. But during the summer its climate remains extremely hot and humid. The district summer highest day temperature is in between 25°C to 44°C. Most of its rainfall occurs in the monsoon season. The actual rainfall in the district was 851.70 mm in the year of 2022-23.

Administrative wise, the district is divided into 5 sub-divisions namely Sardar, Chandpur, Dhampur, Nagina and Najibabad. On the other hand in order to administer in a better way the 5 sub-divisions district is divided into 11 developmental blocks. There are 8 Assembly constituencies in the district likewise, Najibabad, Chandpur, Noorpur, Dhampur, Nagina, Bijnor, Barhapur and Nehtaur. Moreover, the district comprises 26 towns and 2,984 villages. The administrative language in the district is Hindi.
